

ABSTRACT

A method and system for ordering a priority for a function to receive any type of processing resources in a system that includes a plurality of functions. The invention includes identifying a plurality of instances of the functions that use processing resources. The invention then determines an importance of at least one of said instances by using fuzzy logic in a fuzzy inference system.